History :

At the advent of New Millennium, a group of rural student and non-student youth in the village Kulpi of South 24-Parganas district, West Bengal used to join rescue of cyclone-affected hapless people in their quarter. They often assembled together and discussed about welfare and development activities to be launched for the benefit of poor and needy village people. But they could not decide from where to start and how to processed. After a good deal of discussion they decided to develop a common Platform to serve the suffering people. Their decision came into reality in 2002 when they founded the organization KULPI ASTHA.

Kulpi – the place of origin

Astha – means confidence

Confidence on the people whom the organization serves

Confidence of the people on the organization

Confidence of the organization on itself
